

19. Aksaya character story

When they were in the land of the Pandavas, they performed good deeds and lived a peaceful life. They established almshouses and lived well so that no one in their country would suffer from hunger. Due to his scheming, Duryo was forced to leave the country.

The Pandavas reached the forest surrounded by many sages and others. Twelve thousand people surrounded the Pandavas. The responsibility of feeding all of them was Daruma's thirteenth. Daruma saw a sage named Saunagar and worshiped him. Sage was very happy with the goodness of Daruma. He bestowed a boon. Dharumar performed penance towards Anikathiravana. Katiravan showed; He gave an amazing piece of gold. For how many people? Even if they wanted food, the nature of feeding even so many people became that inexhaustible enam (Aksayapatra). The Pandavas, who came with them, with the help of the 12,000 people who came with them, gave them rare food and enjoyed themselves. If you eat in the forest, you will be as healthy as if you were in the country. According to the ancient Pandavas, it is true that a person who has the ability to judge the food he eats is good for hunger and evil diseases.
