

30. The Story of Anasuya (2)

Her chastity was also praised by special devotees. It happened that the Mutevas who came to investigate her chastity also became her pride's children.

Her husband Athrimunivar stayed in a forest and did severe penance for many years. It did not rain in the country then. So all the people suffered a lot due to lack of water. Then she prayed to her husband and prayed for rain. The country enjoyed good rains. People marveled at her chastity. The people of the world knew very well that even if a woman who worships her husband as a deity says that she is a rain fairy, the rain will fall without fail.

(speciality of mind)

(Shiva Purana)