

34. Anuman Story (3)

Anuman was brilliant. Yet he was very modest. No matter how great and great they are, if they do not have modesty, they are prone to many kinds of evil. Anuman took this in his heart and acted accordingly. His modesty earned him all the glory. One day Anuman was sitting on a forest path. Veeman, who was born with him in a way, passed that way. Veeman was disappointed to see Hanuman's modesty. He confided all his pride to Kalla Anuman. After hearing everything, Anuman said, "Everything is fine. I can see all your powers by lifting this tail of mine and a little beyond it." After saying, "Is this a big thing?" Veeman very easily went and tried to lift Anuma's tail. No matter how hard he tried, he could not lift the tail. Only after this, Veeman realized that Anuma was born with that name.

[modesty]

(Ramayana)