

8. The story of Angivaruna

Angivaruna was one of the kings. His reign was glorious as he was blessed with knowledge. Admired by all as the best in virtue, he went beyond measure in the consumption of pleasures; Dhila Matar also cooperated. Due to their habit, he also started drinking. Over time, the habit of cheating has become rampant. So the knowledge is also lost. He wandered around in a frenzy. Seeing his condition, his enemies laughed. The petty kings who were paying tribute to him could not pay tribute to him and spoke contemptuously of him. His fame spread all over the country and went unnoticed. Those who saw his plight felt sorry that he had reached such a state because of his habit of lying. Those who wish to worship in Kallini will be blessed by the enemy; It is well understood that they will lose their fame.
